About our Key Note Speaker

KOMEN SCHOLAR DR. ELIZABETH A. MORRIS

Elizabeth A. Morris, M.D., FACR, is Chief of the Breast Imaging Service at Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center (MSKCC) and Professor of Radiology at Weill Cornell Medical College and the Larry Norton Endowed Chair. Komen Scholar, one of the 60 top breast cancer researchers since 2017.

“Treating breast cancer when a tumor is small can save a woman’s life, which is why I am strongly drawn to breast imaging. We have pioneered high-risk screening with MRI.

My research focuses on how best to use newer techniques to detect breast cancer early and to assess whether treatment is working. In collaboration with my colleagues, I have written many papers, chapters, and books about breast disease. We have published studies on using new techniques such as MRI for screening women at a high risk of cancer as well as monitoring the treatment of a known breast cancer.”
